President Greg Hipple

After a remarkably warm and snow-free January in Iowa, I fear for the upcoming weather in February. I cannot recall a January in history that we had mud like the past month. From the news, it looks as if many Belted Galloway Breeders across the country have experienced all types of weather this winter. I am hoping things work out for everyone.

Mid-winter is traditionally a time for planning for the upcoming year. I have had the opportunity to attend a continuing educational presentation and I will try to attend one or two more. I really enjoy the chance to take in a different (or maybe even a new) perspective on how I do or have done things on my farm. A big change in agriculture that I see is in technology. The availability and the advances of technology absolutely amaze me.

Planning is a major activity of the Society during this time of year. The Breed Performance and Technology Committee are currently studying the broadening of the Belted Galloway DNA database with the issues related to maintaining and documenting the purity and integrity of our breed.

The regional groups are also holding meetings and planning their activities and promotional events for the upcoming year. The annual 2017 National Belted Galloway Sale hosted by the New England Galloway Group is in Fryeburg, Maine on Saturday, April 22, 2017. The Spring Council Meeting will also be held during the event. The Great Lakes Belted Galloway Association will hold the semi-annual Belties Unlimited Show in Tipton, Iowa on June 10, 2017. Pat and I will again serve as hosts.

The 2017 Belted Galloway Society Annual Meeting will be held at World Beef Expo in Milwaukee, Wisconsin September 21-23, 2017. World Beef Expo has announced over $25,000 in premiums offered for exhibitors. They are currently finalizing the educational seminars that will be available. Check out their website www.worldbeefexpo.com for the latest updates.

As information becomes available for all events, it can be found on beltie.org. While you are making plans for the new year, or in the near future, please consider attending one or more of these events that benefit the members and enthusiasts of the Belted Galloway breed.

CLRC News

Executive Director Vic Eggleston DVM

The Canadian Livestock Records Corporation serves as the Society registrar. Recently they corresponded with my office identifying some common delays in turnaround time after submission of registration applications.

1. Animal transfers: Breeders often do not send in the original registration certificate at the time of transfer. It is a requirement that the original registration certificate must be submitted at the time of transfer.

2. Semen certificates: Semen certificates must accompany the registration application for animals conceived by artificial insemination.

3. Tattoos: A tattoo must be submitted in order to register an animal. A tag number may be submitted but it cannot take the place of the official tattoo.

4. Transaction fee: A transaction fee is charged by CLRC for each submission regardless of number of applications that are sent.

CLRC website

The CLRC will be doing a major update on their website in April. The new software will include online registration capabilities for the Belted Galloway Society. In addition, the new system will have a tracking system which will allow our membership to determine the status of their applications. The feature will help our members to identify issues that may be holding up their applications.

Added staff

The CLRC is in the process of hiring more staff. Unfortunately, no one can control the Canadian postage delays. Scanning your application for registrations and emailing them to the CLRC is a way to expedite the registration processing until online registrations are implemented. Transfers will still have to be mailed to CLRC because the original certificate must accompany the transfer application. There likely will be further updates leading up to the new website installation.

Forms & Pedigree Information

All BGS forms that are needed to process applications and transfers are available at clrc.ca or beltie.org. For the research of pedigrees, a query by an individual farm, state, animal name, registration number or tattoo number may be done. An extended pedigree is available for each animal researched and a list of progeny may also be viewed. Inbreeding coefficients are offered and measure the degree of repeating or common ancestors that exist in the pedigree. Coefficients are measured as a percentage from 0% to 100% or values from 0 to 1. The website uses percentages. An animal with a coefficient of 0% has no known common ancestors that appear on both the sire and dam side of the pedigree. If you were to breed an animal to its sire or dam, the resulting offspring will have an inbreeding coefficient of at least 25%, depending on the number of other common ancestor lines that might appear in the pedigree.

In addition, the CLRC offers a virtual mating service which will determine the inbreeding coefficient for a proposed mating and display a five-generation pedigree and common ancestor list. The virtual mating option appears at the bottom of each animal page and you can select a mate based on member ID number, animal name or registration number. If you select the ID number option, you can select one or more or all animals owned by that member.

Tattoo Before You Register

Executive Director Vic Eggleston DVM

The Belted Galloway Society established a rule in 1996 that required all Belted Galloway cattle to be tattooed in the left ear (or, optionally both ears) before registration or recordation.

Society members must first record with the CLRC a farm or ranch designation (tattoo code) of up to three characters, which may be placed at the beginning or end of a single line tattoo, or may appear in another location in the same ear, or in the opposite ear.

The year of the calf's birth will be designated by an alpha character (E for 2017) and will appear first or last in the tattoo string (at the opposite end from the tattoo code).

Up to three numerals can be placed in the middle of the string. Some breeders sequentially number their calves beginning each year, others continue the numbering year-to-year. Either way, no two calves may be given identical tattoos.

Breeders may request their veterinarians to apply the tattoo, or may purchase the equipment to perform their own tattooing. Many people tattoo their calves the day they are born while others wait until the herd is being "worked", though it should be noted that it is important to properly identify the calf before it leaves the cow.

Your tattoo kit should include a clamp or gun, letters, numbers, a bottle of rubbing alcohol, a clean soft rag, green tattoo ink, a pair of curved scissors, a tooth brush and a tattoo book or ledger. Sterilize the tattoo set with alcohol or disinfectant between usages to avoid transmitting wart viruses or other diseases. To produce a legible tattoo first clip the hair inside the ear, and then clean away wax (if any) with a soft cloth dampened with rubbing alcohol. Apply ink with a tooth brush to the ear surface before clamping the tattoo gun firmly into the center of the ear or between the prominent "ribs" in the center. Immediately after releasing the clamp, rub ink generously with a toothbrush into the tattoo impressions.

Most tattoo errors appear to be due to not correctly using the assigned farm code letters or putting the year letter designation next to the farm code rather than either before or after the number assigned to the animal by the owner. The main reasons for illegible tattoos are not squeezing hard enough on the tattoo applicator and not properly aligning the applicator with the ribs in the ear.

About Classifieds

- ◆ Your classified's required contact information — name, farm, location, phone and email. All classified ads are automatically placed on beltie.org with a two-month limit on classified insertions. Photos are $10 placed on beltie.org only.
- ◆ Email ads to executivedirector@beltie.org or by fax (608) 527-4811 or phone (608) 220-1091. We encourage members to submit ads the last two weeks of the month.
- ◆ About bulls ... Before advertising a young male be sure he is well conformed, tracks properly, has good legs and feet, and exhibits good weight gains. We should have data available on his birth weight, 205-day weaning weight, and yearling weight. If he's reached breeding age (around 18 months), it's definitely a plus to have his semen checked for quantity and motility, and uniform scrotal development (two normal sized testicles). Any data available should appear in your advertisement along with his birth date and the names of his sire and dam. It is required that registration numbers be included on bulls advertised for sale in the classifieds.

Belties in Art

One North Georgia Beltie farmer has combined her love of these special cattle with her sculpting skills.

Jane Hemmer, who raises Belted Galloways on White Sulphur Farms in Gainesville, Georgia, recently included Belties in her art shown at a local show. One of her entries in the Quinlan Visual Arts center featured a Beltie hide with two bronze medallions with Bel-ties sculpted on them.

Jane has been sculpting for over ten years and her work has been shown at The Currahee Club, Brenau University and The Georgia Art League. Along with art projects, Jane also uses her sculpting skills to assist law enforcement with forensic sculpting. She graduated from the Medical College of Georgia with a B.S. in Medical Technology, followed by graduate work in Anthropology at the University of Georgia. She is certified as a forensic artist.

The Quinlan Visual Arts Center is a Gainesville center dedicated to “bringing visual arts to life, and to the life of the community.”

Look for updates in the March issue! The 27th National Sale will be held in Fryeburg, Maine on April 22, 2017.
